From the Director's Desk

With Memorial Day in the rearview mirror, we are officially in conference season at Indiana Wesleyan University. Over the next ten weeks, the Marion Residential campus will be hosting nearly 25,000 visitors who will be joining us from points all over the world.

Some will be attending sports or church camps. Others will be taking part in professional or educational conferences. We will have guests coming to campus as part of a religious group gathering and some converging on our campus to receive valuable training for the ministry that God has called them to perform.

No matter who the group is or what their purpose for coming to campus might be, we at Indiana Wesleyan University have a tremendous opportunity and responsibility to serve their event needs and share the love of Christ with them through our actions and interactions with one another.

I ask that over this next two and a half months that you take time to lift the campus community up in prayer as we ministry to the many who will be joining us. Pray that lives might be changed and that God will be glorified through all that is done on our campus this summer.
