News and Notes on Phillippe Performing Arts Center events

February, 2018

Volume 24

February 22-24 at 7:30pm and February 25 at 2:00pm

Phillippe Auditorium

"Composed non-stop in forty-two 'nights of veritable rapture', this is the younger Strauss's most celebrated and popular operetta - intoxicatingly melodious and exuberant. Mistaken identities, flirtations at a masked ball, elegant frivolities and confusions of all kinds provide a hilarious vehicle for some of the most captivating music ever written. A blissful show - especially rewarding for societies with high singing standards. The Overture is one of the most popular ever written, with five of the best tunes woven into a framework of the great 'Fledermaus Waltz'." (The Guide to Light Opera and Operetta).

From the Director's Desk

Ever watch Groundhog Day, the movie where weatherman Phil Connors (played by Bill Murray), finds himself inexplicably living the same day over and over again?

Well, in celebration of this movie and the holiday for which its title is given, I thought we would go back one year and relive a small portion of the Director's Desk note from February 2017. Here it goes...

In the early morning hours of Thursday, February 2nd, Pennsylvania's world famous groundhog, Punxsutawney Phil, predicted six more weeks of winter after seeing his shadow. For those itching for a springtime stroll in the park, Phil's prediction came as a disheartening blow to the senses.

I too look forward to what the spring has to offer. But until the weather shapes up, how about seeking out some indoor entertainment at one of our upcoming events at IWU?

Wow, the question is just as relevant now as it was one year ago. How about seeking out some indoor entertainment at the PPAC this month? You won't be disappointed. See you at the show.
